Sources of finance for business projects is an interactive technical note which offers a global vision of the different alternatives that exist for financing a business project.

This interactive technical note is separated into the following four sections:

- Financing business projects
- Alternatives to risk capital
- Risk capital
- A final exercise

Author: Ignacio de la Vega
Once an entrepreneur has identified a business idea and its viability, he/she looks for the most appropriate way of funding the project. This technical note gives the student the possibility to discover the different financing alternatives available.
A number of interesting internet links to different associations, which offer financing services for business projects, are included.
Through an interactive exercise students will be able to self evaluate their understanding of the concepts studied in this interactive technical note.
