Service-level-based management model is an interactive technical note that focuses on explaining the service level management (SLM) model and its application in information technologies.

This interactive technical note includes:

• The methodology and the model, explaining the different involved people and concepts
• 2 practical cases
Using a case study of a bank, students analyse the feasibility of implementing SLM for the systems and e-business departments, using internal resources and outsourcing.