Compensation is an interactive technical note that explains the criteria and procedures for the analysis of compensation in a company. The analysis serves as a basis for preparing a wage review plan.

This technical note is divided into three parts and considers the following:

- Internal Equity
- Salary Bands
- External competitiveness of compensation
This interactive technical note includes a number of interactive graphs that enable students to understand concepts such as internal equity and its calculation method.

In this example, students can click on the graphs to see examples of salary bandwidths.
In the last section “External Competitiveness”, through the use of an example, students are able to observe the position of each employee graphically, and compare these to external market conditions.
