Openbravo is an interactive case study about a Spanish ERP provider which offers the software under an Open Source license.

The different chapters are the following:

- The company
- The market
- Open Source
- The decision
The case explains the initial situation of the company before an important investment company joined and changed the strategic outline of the company. With the help of interactive graphs and videos, students are shown how the business model of an Open Source Software company works.
Different decisions have to be done in an interactive manner by the students in order to help to initiate a discussion in classroom.
